George Bunkl will, in all probability, get the bulk of his father's wealth. Say day Gould don't die for fivo years more. He will then be worth fully $150,000,000 H his fortune rolls up as rapidly as it is doing naw. If man. George Goold can manago to control and increase his l'ather's lion of dollars. John D. Rockefel ler's heir, if his $127,000,000 goes to line in a lump, will be worth nearly two hillion dallurs in lifty years. The Rockefellor millions have accamulated very rapidly. Most of the great fortunes have rolled up in one generation, but the Rockefeller fortune has been made in less time. Allowing for an increase as rapid us in the past, and large rates of interest, I um pretty suro that the two billion dollars estimate will be correct. Well, William Wuhlorf Astor now line a forting of $125, 000,000. He will get at least soven all probability, live for twenty-five years more. Now, the sou, John ducub Astor, will then be about forty five years old Making com pototions at the rate of seven per cent, and compounding the interest semi-annually to allow for reinvestment the Astor millions in twenty five years would rolf up to $698, 012,500. Then in twenty-five years John Jacob Astor could become a nearly all the great fortnues will used. he augmented every year far beyoud their patural increase. AN EDGED TOOL.

"Miss Morrel wanted immediately in the show rooms!"

Shrill and sharp and clear the message vame through the speaking tube lute the great room where all of Mrs. Cavencheli's young women were at work-the great, bare-floored echoing room, which was lighted only from askylight of frosted glass from a bove. Ynlencia Morel rose at ouce her pale, ofive cheeks suddenly suffused with scarlet, to obey the sum mons. She folt sure she was to be Purcley to April, and Duceday in June scolded for slighting the pipings on the skirt of old Mrs. Mickel's bluo satin dress. But Mrs. Cavindish sit ting at her desk, received her grace-

"Miss Morel," said she, "on secend thoughts, you may trim Miss Vovassa's moire antique with lace insteam of velvet. Miss Gny, the forewommu, will give the necessary inatractions." Alter a moment sho ndded: "My denr, you know that I seldem interfere in the private and personal affairs of my young women. But I am informed that you are escorted home every night by n gen deman who must certainly be above your station. Miss Morel, I am not your guardian, nolther do 1 possess any authority over you. But I do know something of the world and hid you beware!"

Valencia Morel was quite stlent. If Mrs. Cavendish land for an instant supposed that her favorlie"trimmer' was going to confide in har, sho was mistaken. Half au hopr later, when the girls all swarmed out of Mrs. Cavendish's work room at the sound of the 6 o'clock bell, Inlencia Morel centrived to be a little behind the rest, so that it was quite dark when she reached the corner of the street, and a quick, silent shadow, with the flery eml at a cigar burulng in front of it, moved up to her side quite as a matter of course.

"Valencial" softly spoke the phua-

"Yes, It Is I," said Valencia Morel, coquettishly pulling the blue reif n little father over her face. "And Mrs. Cavendish has somehow found out that you walk home with me evenings."

"Well what thep?" deminded the owner of the fire-tipped cigar in a deboualr and defaut sort of a way. "Is it a capital orime!"

"N-un, I suppose not," said Vulencm, dulmously. "But Rector-"

"Some girls have an absolute manin on the subject of weddings," said Miss Gay, clavating her brow.

But Vulencia Morel's motive was deeper far than any of whileh Mrs Cavendiab and her forewoman could droam. And one day her quest met with its reward. Mrs Dorraucowns a widow, lat, tair and 40; and Mrs. Durrance contemplated a second and never sees him now, I'TIE 'rt libyton. And while she

"Miss Morrel wanted lume diate ly in the show rooms!"

Shrill and sharp and clear the message came through the spenking tabe iuto the great room where all of Mrs. Carendish's yonng women were at work-the great, bare-fluored echotug room, which was lighted unly from a skylight of frested glass from a hove. Valencia Morel rose at once her pale, plive checks suddenly suf fused with scarlet, to obey the smu mons. She left sure she was to be scolded for slighting the pipings on the skirt of old Mrs. Mickel's blue satin dress. But Mrs. Cavindish sitting at her desk, received her gracefully.

"Miss Morel," said she, "ou seeand thoughts, you muy trim Miss Vovassa's moire untique with lace justeae of velvet. Miss Gny, the forewoman, will give the necessary instructions." After a moment she added: "My donr, you know that I seldom interfere in the private and personal affairs of my young woman. But I am informed that you are escorted home every night by a gendeman who must certainly be above your station. Miss Morel, I am not your guardinu, nelther do I possess suy authority over you. But I do know something of the world sud hid you bewure!"

Valencia Morel was quite silent. If Mrs. Cavemilah had for an instant suppesed that her favorite"trimmer' was going to coufide in her, she was mistaken. Half au hour later, when the girls ull swarmed out of Mrs. Cavendish's work room at the snaud of the 6 o'clock bell, Valencia Merel contrived to be a little behind the rest, so that it was quite dark when she reached the corner of the street, and a quick, silear shadow, with the flery eml of a eigar barning in front of it, moved up to her side quite as a mutter of course.

WHAT FRED SAW.

The day were very pleasant but enally and enter it.

Long, we say mouths I had been to the darkened room, and still they kept me there, afforming no breath of stee puce, esol air to reach my feverish head.

I treed to open the window, but was not strong enough, and I fell tuck in my chair, breathing the stit-Rug sir, which every thoment become mare impressive.

I thought I could not endure it, sell, and Themsley in Jump wet how could be avoid it? There was only one way without danger of discovery, a step into the hall, and those spiral stairs would take me to the house top-to the obser-

How exhiterating! I wondered that I had been housed so ong. looked down men the group of young linkes who were sporting on the lawn.

Jennie Magrair was there, the daughter of my host, the only woman I ever loved, but I was nothing to tier. She knew not low I worshipped her, and I should keep my secret welt, for she was the betroth ed of Gerahl Machara.

Bow I envied him and perhaps luted lim a little, for I knew that he last not won her love. She had pledged her band to save her old father from paverty.

She had consented to the sacrifice and Marburn was satisfied.

Jurning away I tried to banish the painful, hopeless thoughts that had begrerwakened.

Adjusting the telescope I took a survey of the farming and woodland that streeted far away to the east for many intine.

I caught sight of two men whom I recognized as Gerald Macharumid John Layton.

They were evidently in search of gazar. The glass was small, yet a vera supertor matrument, and I comblser them very plainly not with stand ing the distance.

COUNTY SEAT REMOVAL.

The suggestion of the removni of the county sent from this place to Marlluton, is being ugitated, and petillons to that effect are being circulated to get the required nomber of signers, usking the County Court to submit It to n vote of this people, which election, we suppose, will take place about January 1st Faculty:

Col. Jno. T. McGraw, Capt. Geo. W. Whitescarver and others of Grafton, and Capt J. W. Marshall of Rambolch county, who own Marlinton, and are having it Inid off into town lots, are the principal agitalora.

Their proposition is, that when the election is submitted, to despostiwith the sheriff $5,000 in eash and n deed for 24 neres of land for public buildings &e., to be given to the County II the regulred threefifths vote carries; while it is of course n vulnuble consideration, If the coun ty wants the court-house removed.

It is not our place, we think, in publishing a nowspaper in the county and for the county, to make suggestions as to what is its best interests in regard to this matter, but to give the facts, honestly, plain and simple as they stand. A BIT OF TRUE POLITENESS.

Some time ago n friend of tho writer gave a dinuer to which a young man, his wife and their ilttle child were invited. The child was a very precoclons, bashful and intensely sensitive little one. During the dinper she upset a glass of water apon the table eloth, and hastly noticing the looks in her direction, her little lip quivered and her eyes filled with tears. At that moment my friend who gave the dinner, knocked over his own gluss with a crash that drew every eye in his direction. He laughed over the matter and said it made no difference, etc., and succeeded lu withdrawing the attention from the chlid, who soon smiled again. That I consider to have been the perfection of politeness.

> WOOD FOR THE PRINTING PRESS.

The wood pulp hasiness is gener ally regarded as in its Infancy in this country, aml yet the product is enormous. The Philadelphia Record, which makes its own paper has farmished a piece of special information, which gives an inkling at the magnitude of the general consumption of wood pulp. It states that a single edition of the Record-150,000 copies of a 12 page paper, required 17 tous at blank paper, to produce which 67 cords of poplar was used. In 22 honrs from the time of felling the tree it had been turned into print cal papers. The process is thus divuled with respect to a test case; Chapping 14 cords of woods, hours, in mininfacturing into pulp. 12 hours, transporting to the Record office, 1 hour and 20 minutes; wetting paper, previous to printing, 30 minutes, printing 10,000 copies, 10 minutes. This shows the rapid ity with which raw material may in turned into a finished article, dress going through immerous processes. If the Record averaged 50 cords of 94 poplar daily, it would amount to 18,250 cords unmaily. It must Inst how it imprened none of the then be educidered that it is only one paper in one city, and that about every newspaper is printed from material consisting large y and often almost wholly of wood pulp, which is also used in the production of nearly all common and median grades of paper for almos all use. It is thus seem that the consumption of wood in pulp mak ing is of great magnitude. With enarmons consumption of woull for railway ties and hullding and the added requirements of the printing press, it is not strunge that our forests are rapidly disappearing. Every State should pass lows for the encouragement of tree identing. If steps are not soon taken to restore mir woods, there will ere long be a tree famine .-Scientific Americans

There was a great noise! Shouts -hourse, shrhl, sweet, unrsh! The doep bass of young men; the feeble quavering of old ones, the silvery tones of women; the high falsette of children; all adngling in delight and exultation, and whillhout a shadow of plty for the misorable wretches whose lives were passing slowly out of their mangled bodies through a score of wounds. The fate after noon sun beat down hotly ou thousands of heads, savo where on one side friendly walls afforded a shelter from its rays. In the great open arena-tho sky its nuly canopy-a haze of dust, with the honvy vupor always attendant upon a vist coocourse of people, made the atmos phere so bad to breatho that the multitude gusped with effort between its shouts.

Fans waved in a thousand bejeweled bands, but the artificial current of air thus created was lardly perceptable. It was hot-steamily hot, and anything but a Mexican andience, which hud just witnessed the slaughter of one of the florcest and gamest buils that over put a untudor in fleadly peril, would long ago have left the building.

"That matudor is a brave fellow. How neatly he found the heart with one plange below the shoulder He handles his sword like a loaster, eh, senorin sald a durk visuged, powerfully built Mexlenn, as he fun ned bluself with his large sombroro, and looked in the face of a quiet looking, well dressed man at his side.

"Yes. He is a skillful swordsmun, uniloubtedly," was the reply of the well dressed young man, in mnoise takable northern accents.

The well-dressed man, with the northern accent sut through the performance quintly and with the alr of one who laid nothing particular to do or he would not have been there. Sorday hullfights evidently interested him tut slightly. His eyes were inrued toward the arena, because from his seat it was ensier to look in that direction than in any other, but any one could have seen that his thoughts were fur away.

A few days since we heard a gentleman et enltare und experience remark, done mere Legislature like our last and we are undere indeed." This seems to be the opinion of the people generally, without regard to party, and why is lt? You have only to glance all the laws passed last winter, to know the reason.

If there is an net passed which is an improvement on enriformer laws or a benefit to the people generally, we have been anable to netice it.

The most weeful calamity possible is forced apon as in the new "Jury Law." It will not be possible fer us to have a legal jury notll after June 1st, 1892. While the interests of the general public must suffer from this state of circumstanees, the public is not in the pitiable situation of some judividuals, who hear the full, over full, burden of the law.

There are now confined in our jull the Bright beys, on a charge of mnrder, and they have been there for about one your. The record shows that the State has had these cases continued all this time, and it is understood these beys have always been ready and anxions for a trial.

when we ask why justles is thus tardy in being measured out, we are referred to our new "Jury Law."

We do not desire to pass on the guilt or innocence of any individual, but we feel warranted in saying, if we have heard the evidence correctly from both sides, the Bright law abiding citizen who had any September: respect for himself, his family and the trouble is said to have been on the Randolph and Pocahoutas Tracy's forcing his wife, (who is counties line. But his little fortune was rapidly disappearing, and his little silary was so extremely small that it was scarcely worth comaing as n menns toward these desired results.

What must be do? He has ask ed himself this question almost ev ery hone lately, and had never got hat one answer-'Marry!'

After a careful and honest review he was compelled for admit that among all the rich and splendid girls whom he had habitually spoken of as grazy about ldm, only two were ernzy enough to entertain the thought of marrying him-pretty little Bessie Bell and life exceedings ly claver Nora St. Clair.

Hessio was the only child of a riel widow, who lived in exectlent style, and who was perfect matress of her meomo. She was a sweet, dainty I tile blonde, always irreproachably stylish in dress, always ready so dimple into smiles, and never at a hiss for just the most ingreeable thing to say, Nora was a close friend of Bessie, but in all wcontrast. She was no tenderly nurtored beiress, but a poor brave girl, who had by the force of her intellight, study and incowork gained an ouviable position in the literary world. Her income from her writings was very hand some; she visited in the most aristocraftic circles; she was charming to person and manners, and dressed like the rest of the Inshionable, world. senso she would not only be the belter half,' but probably the four fourths of the bonse; nul that his personnity would sink into birs. Mny's lineband.

So Bessie won the decision, and he determined if his new suit camo inane the next day, to offer Miss Bell the landsome person which it afform ed. For, to tell the truth, he was a lundsome fellow; and if this work & day world had only been a great drawing room, with theatrical alcoves and imisical consurvatories, why, then Mr. Julies May would lava been na mudestrable companour through it.

The new suit came home, and fit ted perhetly; the tonsorial department was equally effective in its m rults; every precaulion had been to ken, and he telt an earnestness of success in the very prosperity of these productionaries. He rang al Mrs. Bell's door; before the footienn ecold open It, a gentlemon came quality out, throw limiself licto Mrs. Bell's carriage, and, in a voice of anthority, ordered the coachings to hight. directo the wherf.

WASHINGTON LITTER.

From our wanter correspondent. WA DINGTON, D. C. Get. 23rd-

A delegation of prominent Ten nesse ha were here this week to ask Mr. Harrison to promote U.S. District Judge F S. Hummond, of the West Tourseson district, to the bench of the new Circuit Court.

Secretary Illaine's toan, Joseph A. Mantey, was here this week, and It is believed that he brought a conadential verbul message to Mr. Hur Tison.

Mr. Harrison has succeeded in correling Pred Douglas, who since be was kicked out of the Havtian mission has shown a disposition to use whatever influence he possessed with the negro voiers of the country against Mr. Harrison. Not only has Mr. Harrison gotten a flat footed public avoval of support from Duglass, but he is also supposed to have been at the liotrom of the slar which Duglass made in a speech here this week upon Secretary Blaine and his management, of the unfortainte vole St. Nichols: matter. Douglass claims to linve documents in his possession tind would, if published, show the De partment of State in a very differ ent light from which it is now view ed. Mr. Harrison may be the warm friend of Secretary Blaine that he professes to be, but it is nevertheles a fact that Mr. Harrison's friends to varibly when saying in public some thing nice about him add something either directly or by implication derogatory to Mr. Blaine.

Representative Mills, who mad pinoteen speeches in Ohio, is not resting in this city preparatory 1 taking part in the campaign in Mai sochusetts, where he is under ei gagement to make six or eigl speeches. Mr. Mills reports Gov ener Campbell's prospects as grov ing better every day. Speaking of his prospects on the free coing of eiler Mr. Mills snid: am con inced that the lest intere of the party demand that tariff r form shall be made the principal ! sue lu the present fight, and as not ing practical can be accomplished the way of silver legislation, durin the next Congress, there is no u fongiture the subject now."

The man looked up in surprise when the offeers entered and one of them asked where he came from.

"From Rough creek," was the answer.

"Where's that?"

"Near Devil's gulch," replied the stranger.

"Where do you think you are?" Everyhody "Beverly, W. Vo. knows W, L. Jayer."

It was seen that the min was very drunk, but a lincket of cold water had the effect of sobering him up sufficiently to enable him to give a more Incid account of himself. He said that he was stopping at the Athritic hotel, corner of Sherman and Van Buren streets, and was on his way east from Aspen, Col. He had started out to see Chicago af ter dark, and becoming wenry stark ed for his hotel. He gonns for as the donrway, where he sut down proceeded to dirabe, plucing his lint and coat on the side walk. The weather being a triffe cold be brone. ed up and made more ellors to gu in, but made a mistake and got into Banks house instead.-Chacago Mail.

A SINGULAR SALE.

When Shylock bargained for a "point of flesh," it was not recorded what he laterated to do with it. But a sale of a very similar commodity recently took place for human. linrian reasons. A young widow, norse in a hospital for children la San Francisco, recently sold forty five square inches all her skin for one hundred dollars. A strip of skin nine by five inches was cut from her body by surgeous and was grafted on to the leg of a railway mail elerk whe was hunred in an accident. His right leg was leadly burned and would not heat, and as n last resort skin grufting was proposed. A fellow-clerk of the sufferer first offered to supply the sklu, but when he learned how much was needed he backed out. The mrse, linving three children and needing money, offered to farnish the necessary uncount of skin. She submitted bravely to the opperation, which was performed successfully, and was paid one hundred dollars for her sacrifice. Victor Hingo in Les Miserables appends touchingly to oor sympathies with the relation of poor Fantine who sold all her belongs, qualify as a lawyer and practice In her beautiful bair, and flually ber the court. RELOCATION QUESTION AT LAST SETTLED.

The question as to where our Court House shall be located, is at last diratly settled by the people.

As the result shows that the will e over three-fifths of our people is that Marlinton shall have the Court Itumes, it becomes us as mitizens of a republic to how with deference before the will of the people thus emphatically expressed.

In discussing the issues, through our columns, we have endeavored to be conservative, but we admit that it was with regret that we real lzed that the County Scut must mek a more central and convenient location to conform to the wish of the large unjority of the citizens of our County us the rote shows that the desire for a change of location was general throughout the County

The retorns show that the volers were about all at the polls. The result was not occasioned by local prejudice or factional hitterness. The election was a fair, open, hon ext expression of the will of the voters. Now, let us lay aside all feellug except good-will, and let each the attempt will be made in certain and every one ito all he can, by word and deed, to make our county seat what loss been so appropriate ly styled, "the peoples' town-the projected town of our County."

MARLINTON.

We lind the pleasure of spending last Friday night and Saturday in Morlmon, the new city on the Generalizier river.

The Poenkoutus Development Company which is composed of men of wealth and influence propose, as they say, to make Marlinton a city, and we have every reason to believe they will, knowing as we do the vast surroundings of timber, coal, iron ore, limestone, building stone, fire clay, and in fact everything that is calculated to for nish for ages to come, industrial menufacturing plants of almost every description.

It is stigated at an elevation of nearly 2000 feet above the Allantie, and it is destined to become a great sommer tesort.

Ex-Senator Camden says that Anrinton will become at no distant day the largest manafacturing city in the interior of the State.

Desperate Fight Between Man and Bear.

A fight occurred an the 5th inst. between a man nod a bear at the timber camp of Stetson & Con on Dearborn creek, in Lineala county. Arnold Moore was cook at the shinty where the workman boarded, and for snote time had ooticed pilfering in the pantry, but sopposed the dogs were doing the mischief. Sat urday evening be returned to the camp, after an absence of same hours, and was met at the threshold of the house by a huge black bear. A fight began at ance and in cara est. Moore had nothing for defense but a long, keen bladed clasp kuife, which he opened and begno what proved to be a desperate fight. lasting for some minutes. First the man and then the bear was on lap. After a fearful stinggle Moore pleiced the beart of the bear with his knife, and the bear fell dead at his feet. Moore was bloody and mangled, one finger gone and one ear missing, with wounds and scratches on all parts of the body. The bear weighed 400 pounds when dressad and had oner fifty knife thrusts in his tundy.

HOW DO YOU DO, AGAIN!

There is nothing more apport to a thoughtful observer than Labor la the all things work. great how of the universe. Nuthing wies arented for inlemess, for in noture rest means ruin, in repulsive forms. Hence no creature lives that must not work and may not play. It should be one of the very first lessons enjoined on rich and poor alike that man along with the rost of unture is burn to work.

Health cannot breath the atmosphere of sloth. Not only do our boddy faculties require work, or naing for their propor development, but our mental energies share the need of helpg used. If a part is to develop it must be used; and this is true not merely of a muscle or n nervo but equally so of any moral or moutal quality.

The perfect one must be good all around; muscular power, moral rectitude, and special senses should be in anod trun, in other words excellent. It is no old adage that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and yet and equally force itle sentlment may be found in the statement that occupation wilhout lutigue is luppinoss. Au idle hour ls an linar el Irksonieness. persons must be violous and unheal thy. A philosopher teaches, there is always hope in a man who netual ly and earnestly works; in idleness Blone is there perpetual despair.

STIADE FOR STOCK

Stock of all kimls are not nulike mankind in some respects, and seek the shade whenever possible during the extreme heat of summer. To gratify this desire, shade should be provided wherever practicable, and the chespest manuer of doing this is through the medium of shade trees. One or two should be set out in ruch pasture, and be protected by a fence until thorroughly ostaldished. If the field be tilled, set the trees along the south unle, selecting those of rapid growth and spreading branches. If they be fruit trees, they should be trimmed to a height of at least seven feet, and then allowed to branch ont. While the trees are growing, it would be simply linmane to provide a temporary shelter of some kind, such as setting a few posts, and covering with poles, upon which are thrown branches of evergreens, or even limbs of oak or other trees in full leaf. This will afford a useful shelter, and if located upon n knoll or other naturally poor portion of the field, it will thoroughly merch the soil. By changing its nosition yearly, various portions of the field will be tiemefited. All this takes but n little time, and can be done when other work is not pressing. By loanding up, late in the summer, the unle from which the presulting winds blow, a fair protection from the chilling blasts will le olesmod, and the stock will return you the cost Am richn Agricusturist.

TO PREPARE CORN

Of all the vegetables corn is the most universally welconveit. Here are a few recipes showing the different ways it may be propared:

Green Corn Fritters-Cut through each row of kernels with a sheep knife. Then with the back of the knife press out the pulp and leave the hall on the rals. This is better and easier than to shave or grate off the kernels. To one pint of corn pup add two well-beaten eggs, half a tenspoonful of salt, half a sultspoonful of pepper and two tablespaonfuls of tlour, or just enough to keep the carn and egg together. Do not add milk, as their more flour will be required, and this destroys the flavor of the corn. Fry to small cakes un a buttered griddle and brown well on each side, or add more flour and orop by spoontals into deep fat. When highly sensoned with sult and pepper these fritters have the flavor of oys-

Boiled Green Carn-Chaose young angar-corn, full groun, but not hard; test with the nail. When the grain is pierced the milk should escape in a jet and not be thick. Clean by stripping off the outer leaves, turn back the innermost covering earefully, pick off every thread of silk and recover the par with the thin husk that grow mearest it. 'Tie at the top with a bit of thread, put talobailing water salted and cook but from twenty minutes to fall an hour, in proportion to size and uge. Cut off the stalks close to the cole and send whole to the table

Some then of the importance of anddierr will be received when it is sun! that England exports to foreign ports annually an amount of eaddlery and barness that is valued at helf a million of poulots. Name of this comes to this country, where it is believed that American leather is the best in the world. All saddles are made on the McClellan model, used alike for civil and military purposes. This consists of two straps of beachword, which form a skeleton or frame, strengthaned by iron braces, and over this a covering of tanned pogakin is stretched, while stirrups hung to the same stout leather complete the structure. The difference butwood the war saddle and that of the Thirteenth Century portrayed by Viollet le Duc, supplied with a high and pointed cantle, against which the knight was propped, while he held his lance before him in a firm and straight attitude, is as great as the contrast drawn by Sir Walter Scott in 'The Tahaman' of the two knights that met in the desert-Sir Kenneth, of Scotland, mounted on a massive Norman war horse and the Sultan on his agile Arale steed.

The art of horsemanship dates from remote antiquity, but it is not known when saddles came into existence, and for centuries only a cloth asparated the rider from his horse. While plames rose above horses hends and late and bridles were of solid gold, while flowing tassels at reamed from the harness, belts made mase for the necks and the richest embriddered slotts covered the horses' sides, the Reportings, Assyrious, Persians and threeks, desputa those alegancies, rode on simple pashs or ensluents similar be these still used by the Belowin of The Seandmartans, however, need the saddle as tur lenk as the from Age and the bronze paramels and stirrups now to be seen in the mass ton in Cop plagen, prore that their work-the sides and encompassing the loins of the rider. Many of these have neither saidle bow nor pommel. In the following century a shield was introduced for the protection of the rider's thighs. This extended down the flanks of the horse and was attached to the saddle, farming a part of it. Another curious feature is noticeable for the first time in the saidles of the period. This was for the pommel and cantle to be continued in a circular band or rail which completely surrounded the rider, who must have climbed or dropped into his saildle. A curtains specimen of this description is a German "tilting saddle" of the Fifteenth Century, which is preserved in the Tower of Landon, hought in 1858 from the collection of the Baron de Penker, of Berlin. It is made of wood and covered with hide and canvas, upon which there has been painting. The front measures over three feet and forms a shield for the legs of the knight who, when fairly mounted, would be carried forward in a standing rather than a sitting position.

The tower also owns another German "tilting saddle" of hous dating record is a warrant to pay the sum of from the same period. This is carved with ornaments of dragons, foliage, and has its ground and hatchings litted with color after the manner of enameling. An inscription in the old German in inscribed upon it - "Jeh hoff des pesten dir geling. Hill Cott wol nuf fortune may attend you. May God assist you in the name of St. George). This historical relic, which is now over Henry's tomle in Westminster Althey, was originally resplendent with ldne vervet powdered with golden flenr de lys, possibly in memory of Agincourt. The saddle is twenty-seven inches in length. Many unignificent examples of the smiller's skill in the Sixteenth Century still exist. A tine collection in the Royal Museum of Dresden contains and specimen owned by the King of Saxony, the tows of which are ornamented with claborate representations of battle scenes, griffins, sea monsters and rich foliage, some of those being in reponsse, others in integlia and chasing. There is a spleadid collection, too, of these armored saddles in Madrid, made in the same century. Some of these are of velvet, massively embroidered in precious metals, Damiscened or chised in gold with designs of spirited and beautiful workmanship.

Thus only those of large site reach the earth before being entirely burnt up. The greatest number of such bodies can be seen just be fore daybreak, because by that time we are on the front side of the globe as it moves through space. The clavation at which most of them are visible has been found to be between forty-five and eighty miles, very few being seen at a greater height than 100

"It is believed by most astrocomers that some very brige meteors have eutered our atmosphere and have jussed out into space again, their great momentum being sufficient to take them away from the earth's attraction. What these flying bodies are is a question that has been much disputed, but it is considered most likely that they are the debris of broken-up comets. In one recent justance the correctness. of this theory has found striking proof. That was the case of the coulet at Biels. It was discovered in 1845 and 1852. When Animals Are Kemoved.

When aulmals or plants are 'removed from their peculiar and indural districts to one entirely different in climate some surprising changes take place. As some as possible after each removal they change their character unii habita so as to conform with their new homes, or else cense to exist. A good wool bearing sheep transferred from some northern pasture to the topics changes his coat to a only n few specks of dust in the thin covering of straggling hairs scarcely resembling wool; the dog becomes destitute of bair altogether. and even bees cease to lay up their stores of honey and in a great measure lose their industrious habits. -St. Louis Republic.

"Papa," she said, with a little tremor in her voice, "why do you ohject to Mr. Riverton? Everybody likes him but you."

The squire hesitated a full half minnte, as he make a pretense of carefully lattering his egg.

"I have nothing against the young man's character," he said at longth. still more impatiently, "hut I don't like him personally—that is, his ways. I wish to hear and son no more of him if possible. As she softly oried, with her dainty handkerehief pressed to her eyes, she heard her father's concluding words:

"When you find a man making love in this idiotic way, you may be posttive of one thing—that the love is only skin-deep, and that he will make an indifferent, if not a bad lineband. For this resson I object to Mr. Jack Rivererion courting my danghter."

That evening, lu the quiet twillght interval between ten and orgquet, Eva-QUIRE MADDOX took occasion to convey to Mr. Riverton a warning hint of what her father expected of them in the future.

Jack knew-as dld most of the squire's acquaintances-that despite a "good heart at bottom," the old gentleman was apt to take up absuril and upreasonable prejudices, and to stick his own political to them with tenacions obstinacyespecially when he found himself opposed. But ou this occasion the young man's spirit rose in high rebollion, and it took all Eva's influence to pacify

"No, Jack," she said, with a gentle firmness, in reply to his excited remarks, "you must not speak to papa As his daughter received the empty at present. It would only make matters worse while he is in this mood. We can do nothing but wait and see if in time he won't yield to more reasonably impressions."

"in timed" repeated Jack, im-"Why, Evic, he don't been dearer to him than auything on change his views on any subject within to that subject.

"Well," she said, with a sigh, " "What is the day's programme, suppose we shall have to wait, oven if it is as long as that."

One day the squire, returning from me to Chester and see the Lynn girls his morning ride, found his danghter and his sister scated in the pleasant "No, thank you, papa. The Lyne | little sitting-room opening upon the gardon.

FIGHT WAYS OF PERSANENG CARBAGE.

The simplest way to prepare cabbage, writes Chra S. Everts, in Farm, Field and Pireside, in to make cold-slaw by thredding it and adding a little ealt, popper and enough sharp vinegur to almost cover it in which sugar has been dissolved in the propertion of a henping tablespoonful to a cap of vinegar. A more claborate cold-slaw is made by using a dressing of half a cup of rich eream, tablespoonful augur and half cup of vinegar. Many preter sour cream to sweet, but it will require nearly as much again sugar if sour cream be used instead of sweet.

Cabbage Salad-Cut the cabbage fine. Make a dressing by stirring into a cup of vinegar a well-tienten egg, a said, spologetically, and there were heaping tenspoonful of sugar, small lump of butter, salt and pepper. When it bails add a scant tablespoonful of flour in a third of a cup of milk. Cook well and pour over the cabbage. Mix thoroughly and set aside until cold. In winter it will keep nicely for three or four days. In hot weather if water is used instead of milk it will keep for two days. Many complain that unmooked cabluge is hard to digest. In that easo it should be finely chopped, thoroughly sulted and allowed to stanil Then if all for two or three hours. the water arising is carefully squeezed out before the dressing isudded it will be as digestible as the cooked.

Creamed Cabbage-Chop, add boiling water till it shows through the cubbage, but is not quite covered, sult, popper and cover closely. Cook till topiler, stirring now and then. Add more ster if necessary and when done demp of Uniter and half add a small onp of wilk lu went of flour has been smoothed. Cootwo or three minutes longur and nerve

Fried Cabbage-Chop moderately fluo and put in a frying pan in which is a tablespoonful of hot butter and one of meat drippings. Salt, pepper unil cover closely, stirring often to prevent scorehing. When dellestely browned aild a little water audsimmer nutil dune.

Boiled Cabbage-Soft or coarse heads of cabbage that seem hardly fit for use may be boiled and prove very nice. Cut in quarters, remove the heart and boil with a meat bone, or add to the water enough soup stock to give the desired richness. It should be almost covered with water when heginning to cook and ought to boil from an hour to an hour and a haif. Serve in aido dialies, in which it is car

Eight ponies is an average price, and twelve is considered high. I knew of one for whom the happy bridegroom told me he paid thirty ponies. This statement I always doubted gravely, not because I would no llantly cast any reflection on the charms of the lady, but because I knew the Indian, and appreciated his tulent as a liar. A pour, it may be said, is worth from $8 to $12. The wife is the property of the husband, and when he feels so disposed and can find a purchaser he sells her. Such a transfer makes no breach in the friendly feeling between the quondam hasband and wife. On a long ride through the reservation I had for a guide an especially decent Indian, with whom I conversed for hours. One night when we could not find water, for which our horses were suffering, he said to me: "If we go a few miles further we will find a Navajo bouse where we will be comfortable. The man is my friend and his wife is a good cook. She was my wife last year, but I sold her to him." In my ignorance I imaginal some delioney about the meeting of the two, but was too auxious to Hud water for my good horse to hesitate. When we arrived at the place-a rude wall of stones built around a caveru--the famlly appeared. The man was an especially villanous looking, elderly Indian. The woman was fat and furty, without being fair. The meeting was cordial all around, and between my unide and his former wife there was much pleasant badinage in their own lauguage, while the new husband placelly smoked heseignrettes and concocled schemes, which he successfully carried out, to steal my provisious.

The evolution of the Akhing eraft is pictured in a cabinot just south of the north entrance to the Government building. The lirst of the fishing vessels which came to America was the Sparrow Hawk, which metan nationally end off Capo Cod. She sailed across the water in 1626, struck a reef and went to the bottom. Her ald hulk, which had been embedded in the sands for nearly two and a half coutaries, was nncovered in 1863 and put ou exhibition in Boston Common.

The steamern Albatross and Fish Hawk, which are in the service of the United States commission, are the latest models of the flshing vessel. Captain Collins's model is of a lishing schooner of moderate dimensions and is heing largely copied on both coasts. Its hull is built after the model of a racing yacht and the rigging is adapted to the needs of u fishing vessel. It combines the speed qualities of a yacht and the seaworthiness of a fishing schooner. Safety is also taken into consideration,

The United States is far ahead of the Nations of the world in maintaining a fish commission and caring for its fishermen. A museum line been established devoted to inhthrology, and the steamers of the tish commission cruise all along the coasts of the United States to collect specimens of fish life. Hatcherles have been established in all the States of the Union and every year the work grows in its scope.

WANTES FOR THEMS.

The application of washes to keep the harer from trees may be effectual, though we never knew of one that was Invartably so, and we should prefer to trust to making a careful inspection from two to four times a year, and thrust a wire up the hole where the horer had entered than to any of them. In air menths it will not get for enough beneath the bark to do any ininry, and its presence should not escapa abservation more than ope inspection. If washes are used, the examination should not be aeglected, as there may be some place that was not tonelied where the moth can lodge long enough to deposit her egg. - Boston Cultivator.

However if you are busy with your work, and of course attending to it, for the money or profit to be gained thereby, you would find it a paying investment to spend an banr's time in removing the mud, also properly oiling the axles of both beavy, and light vehicles. In washing a wagon it is best to apply water to the muddy surface several moments before the spongo is used. If a force mump or hose can be used most of the dirt can be thus removed, and will not seratch the surface, as the sand on a sponge or rag will do. - American Agriculturist.

IS SALT NECESSARY FOR CATTLE?

The first thing to be said in favor of common gult is that it is maturn's vermifugo and very destructive to all, or nearly all, intestinal purasites. All herb and grain cating unimals are preyed upon by such parasites, especially when onfeabled by hard work, exposnre to cold storms, or want of nonrishing food; in fact, suything that enfeebles invites the attacks of internal parasites, for, while they are always present in some form, the healthy and vigorous unimal is able to resist their attacks. It, is true that horses, cattle, sheap, and other domesticated unimals may live and thrive, apparently, without receiving salt in its arndo form, but this does not prove that they have been benefited in any way by being deprived of adinarations. What animals may endure and live no doubt is of greater interest to some men than the opposite conditions, and they are usually proue to make experiments in the way of exposure to cold storms, and short rations when shelter and full rations would greatly contheir stock. Salt gives samulity and tive to cold and dampuess. rollah to bay, grusses, and other klude food more nonrishing, and mixed food which cannot be seen except by a close less injurious, and aften recalls the examination. appetite more speedily than any other tonic. Wibl horses, cattle, and sheep, as well as all other berlivorous animals, suck salt-licks and asline marches and pouds where they can estialy their natural desires for salt. When animals are kept in confinement or removed to localities where they examet get to sult springs, they should to given an equivalent in the form of common dry anlt .- New York Sun.

CANNINO TOMATORS.

The following recipe is given in Good Honsekeeping, as a reliable method of canning the "unreliable" tomato: Wash the tomatoes and remove the stems. Have a wide kettle or agate basin of boiling water on the stove, plunge in as much fruit as is conveniently accommodated at one time, and remove with a long-handled skimmer as soon as the skins crack. Dash cold water over the tomutoes and they will almost pure themselves, Slip off the skins and lay the fruit in an curthen dish. When ready to fill the jara, set one ln a milk pan and slice the tomatoes into it. With a wooden masher push down the fruit as the jar fills and turn off the juice and seeds which will rise to the top. Cooking will render the fruit quite juicy enough, and this discarding of the seeds and liquid part appears to be necessary to snecess.

When all the jare are filled to within three inches of the tops, lay on the covers and met the jars over the fire in a boiler of lukewarm water, placing a rack or appoint of some acrt beneath them. A sufficient quantity to complete filling the jara may be alewed in 19 Sold by Druggests, tic. an a ato kettle, or one jut may be mptical for that purpose. About Lightning,

Although lightning and thunder occur always simultaneously, an interval of shorter or longer duration Is usually observed between these two phenomena, which is due to the fictthat sound travels only at the rate of t, 100 lest per second, while the passage of light is almost instantan ous. Based upon this fact it is my easy matter to fell, ittleast approximately, how many mics a thunder-storm is

A normal pulse will beat about one stroke to the second, and by count. in; the pulse bents during the luterval of the ilgarding and the thunder the lapse of seconds is arrived at and consequently the number of feet, whilele can be reduced to miles.

For example: If thirty seconds clapse between the flash of the lightning and the crush of thumler, the storm center is ut a distance of 32,-000 feet, or about 6% miles. An atmost accurate calculation can be made by asing a watch with a minate dial.—Louisville Post-Dispatch.

It was he, indeed, who gave him th name of Old Roses. Dickey sometime went over to Long Neck Billabons Myers and Miss Lucy Armstro where Old Roses lived, for a reel, w he put it, and he always carried awa a deep impression of the Inspector qualities. "Right you are, Victoria; right you are ugain! You do the Jumpling Sand hills credit. Old Roses has the roo of the matter in him-and there you bave it!"

Dickey had a profound admiration for Vic. She had broins, was perfect ly fearless, and every one in th Wadgery country who visited O'Fa Ten's had a wholesome respect for her

About this time news came that the Governor, Lord Malice, would pass through Wadgery on his tour up the back blocks. A great function was nicessary. It was acranged. The speaker referred intlmetely and with peculiar knowledge to the family history of Lord Mulice, to certain more or les private matters which dld not con -rn the jabile, to the authordy of the name and the high duty derelving upon one who bore the earldom of Malice. He dwelt upon the personal character of his Uxcollettey's aut, whente, and praised their honorable services to the country. He thrilled all by the pleasant resonance of his tones, and senl the blood aching delightfully through Nie Dowling's voins.

When he sat down there was lmmense applause. The Governor roso in reply. He spoke in a low voice, but any one listening outside would have said that Old Roses was still speaking. The last words of the Governor's roply were delivered in a very convincing tone as his eyes hung on Olatent. To and Roses' face. "Anil, as I am indebted to you, gentlemen, for the feelings of loyaly to the throne which prompted this recention and the address just delivered, so am I indebted to Mr.-Adam Sherwood for his admirable language and the unusual sincerity of his speaking; and to both you and him for most notable kindness." Immedistely after the Governor's speech Old Roses stole out, but us he passed through the door where Vic stood his hand-brushed against hers. Feeling its touch, he grasped it eagerly for an instant, as though he was glad of the friendliness in her eyes.

It was just before dawn of the morning that the Governor knocked at the door of the house by Long Neck Billaboug. The door opened at once, and he entered without a word.

He and Old Roses stood face to face. His face was drawn and worn, the other's cold and calm.

"Tom, Tom," Lord Malice said, "we thought you were dead-"

"That is, Edward, having left me to my fato in Burmili-you were only half a mile away with a column of stout soldiers and billmen-you waited till my death was reported, and assured, and then came on to England; for two things, to take the title just made vacant by our father's death, and to marry my intended wife, who, he cut will be present at his trial to God knows, appeared to have little upbraid him. - Galveston News. care which brother it was. If your wife shall die, or you should have a child, I shall return."

The Governor lifted his head wearily from the table where he now sat. "Tom," he said, in a low, heavy voice, "I was always something of a scoundrel, but I've repeated of that thing every day of my life since. It has been knives-knives all the way. I insignificant as when standing around am glad-I can't tell you how gladthat you are alive."

He stretched out his hand with a motion of great rollef. "I was afraid you were going to speak to-night—to tell all, even though I was your brother. You spare me for the sake-'

"For the sake of our name," the other interjected, stonily.

"For the sake of our name. But I would have taken my punishment, taken it in thunkfulness, because you are alive."

"Taken it like a man, your Excellency," was the low rejoinder.

"You will not wipe the thing out, Tom?" said the other anxiously.

Ton Hallwood dried the perspiration from his forehead.

"It can never be wiped out, for you shock all my faith in my old world. That's the worst thing that can happen a man. Breathing for Health. Of all the cares which have emerged into public natice from time to time, the simplest and the most easy is tiert which Major-General Drayson describes in the Nineteenth Coutary. He calls it the art of breathing, and he seems to have hit upon it by mere aceldent when he was climbing a very high mountain. The rarefaction of the air at that altitude rendered it accessary for line to breathe twice as fast as he would have done at a lower level. All inconvenience canned by the rarefaction of the air disappeared when he doubted the rate of his breathing. Reflecting noon this he stamble ! upone the great discovery which should immortalize him if there is anything inent. Breathing in the or history way he pumps fourteen pints of hir into his lung per mimbe, containing three junts of oxygen, with which he can sufficiently oxygenate his blood. But on asceroling to 7009 feet the pumping of fourteen plats of air into his lungs per minut would only take in a pull and a hilt of arygen, and as it requires three pints to envigenate the blood, he became almost sufficiented. His locart polyetated nucl he was in danger of his life, but by suddenly doubling the rate by which he had been breathing to found modern relief. He has tried it under a great meny er mastau et. Prancisco was Professor T. H. Marchland, of the Nebraska State University, who has just completed two remarkable scientific expeditions in search of fossils. One was to Pine Ridge, the famous scene of the recent Slous Indian onthreak, where he and others discovered myrinds of a strangely carious fossil, called by them devil's corkserows. The other was to Phillips County, Kansas, where Professor Marshland discovered a wealth of rhinoceros, elephant and mustodon remains, of whose existence nobody hitherto had dreamed. The corkserews are as much as eight feet long, actual corkserens in shape, and are oflen eight inches through. He estimates that there are 400 square miles of them, yet, strange to say, notwithstanding the vast number of scientific expeditions hitherto, none of them has been discavered before. The corkscrews are silicate, and they are found in a silicions saudstone. In many places they stick through the sand rock of the hills, the stone being worn off by the elements, and the silicate spiral, heing harder, having remained. It is no trouble, the professor says, to strip the sand away fram them. It is rather soft, and the men can work fast. Some of the strange spirals are coiled shout a central spire, like a vine about a tree. Then at the hottom or root of the spire are curious protulierances each way, and rising toward the surface of the ground at something like thirty-one degrees. They are often quite as long as the corkserew spiral.

"These devil's corkserews which stick ont over Pine Ridge and border on the Bad Lands," said Professor Marabland to a Chronicle man, "are most singular things. Nohody knows what they are or how they were maile. At first it was thought by some that the spirals were caused by snme sort of a burrowing, the theory being that some animal had hurrowed, rabbitlike, and that the hole had filled with silicions sand and hardened. But this theory wouldn't ilo, because it appeared that whatever the spirals were they were of marine formation, and whether animal or vegetable, had grown under the sea. From all we could gather we are inclined to believe the devil's corkscrews are a curious form of the sponge, yet even that is hy no means certain. Other remarkable things were what we found imbedded in them and forming a part. Once we found the skeleton of a little animal like a rat, and at another time we found the skeletou of a snake."

The corkscrew region extends from the Niohrara River to Pinn Bidge and almost to the Hat Creek Basin. The corkscrews are almost as true as if made by a lathe and are right-handed and left-handed indiscriminately. The great transverse pieces, called rhizomes or underground stems, project in all directions out of the hanks and bluffe like loga. Some are as large as ordinary barrels, others as large as hogsheads. When half disclosed in the hluffs they look like large sawlogs.

Combinations in Locks,

It has been proved that in a patent lock, with an average essed key having six "steps," much capable of being reduced in height twenty times, the number of changes will be 86,400; further, that as the drill-pins and the pipes of the keys may be made of three different sizes, the total number of changes would be 2,692,600. In keys of the amallest size the total number would be 648,000, while in those of extraordinary man it could be increased to not less than 7,776,000 diff rent changes. -St. Louis Republic.

Cillical, this in tim the first change in the Coleopters or beetle family, is frequently seen in the cases of the egtomologist, but it is seldom that you is seen alive in New York. Just at present William Bentenmuller, Preferent of Entomology at the National History Museum, has one of the gunt beetles alive, and the huge insect seems to be doing nucommonly well, as it has a capital appetite. It was caught in the Island of Dominica and brought here by a sailor. It is fully six inches long from the tip of the upper branch of its pincers to the end of its body. The head is jet black, and from it grows out a loug black horn, somewhat irregular in shape. The lower surface of this horn is covered with deep, gold-colored bristles, which no doubt aid in holding whatever the beetle seizes. Another but shorter born grows out from the thorax, and the two form a powerful pair of pincers, with the body for a handle

The elvira, or wing covers, are of a dirty dapple gray, while the upper part of the body is black. There are six powerful legs armed with claws, which easily sink into the human flesh, while a nip from the pincers is a thing to be remembered, even when the insect has only began to pinch. - New York Tribune.

Historic Church,

The honor of being the oldest Methodist Episcopal Church in China has lough to Tien Ang Dong, or the Church of the Peace of Heaven at Foo-Chow. It was built in 1858.

have come. Scores of Christian churches may now be found within the hounds of the Foo-show empference with an aggregate attendance of about 6000 members and probationers at their regular Sonday services. From Foo-Chow went out the men who founded Central China and North China M. E. Missions, and there are now connected with them over 2000 Chinese Christians, Tion Ang Dong at Foo-Chow is the mother of all the churches in which these thousands now worship. Foo-Chow is the chief center of Methodist work in South China. They have there an Anglo-Chinese college, theological school, hove bearding school, girls' boarding school, womans' school and womans' hospital. The numbers of Christians connected with these institutions has increased so that the Chinese edifice will not accommodate them. Last vest a gallery was added, but even now this is too small. Efforts are now being made to raise a fund for rebuilding the Tien Aug Dong edifice with twice the presout enpacity, -Mail and Express.
